Cooperative Buying System Planned For U. K. Fraternities and Sororities

Plans for a cooperative buying system, by which social fraternities and sororities of the university will purchase food and other supplies through a central agency maintained by the university, are at present under consideration. In addition to the buying phase of the plan, arrangements may be made for auditing books of the various organizations at definite periods of the year by the university business office.

Details of the arrangement are at present being worked out by the university business office. It is expected that the cooperative system may be put into operation by the opening of the second semester of the 1931-32 school year. If the plan is carried through all organizations will be represented on a board of directors which will act in administration work. It is expected that fraternity members of the board will be representatives who already have been chosen as members of the Pan-Hellenic council if this arrangement is satisfactory to the fraternities.

Under the plan contemplated all university organizations would purchase food through the distributing agency. The discount thus obtained would bring about a marked reduction in food prices, it is believed. It is possible that the cafeteria and men's and women's residence halls will be included in the system.

Pres. Frank L. McVey said recently that he thought the plan a "very good one," but that it is now too late to work it out for the beginning of the fall semester.

The plan is at present in operation in several universities and authorities in those schools report that it is working successfully and is a most effective agency for reducing food costs to the fraternities.

Ohio State university will begin operation of the plan this fall for the 20 fraternities which are the most financially unstable. The remainder of the Greek-letter organizations probably will be included at a later date.

For the inception of the plan the endorsement of the executive committee of the university will be necessary. Members of the committee have made no official statements regarding their attitude toward the proposal but it is believed that the majority will be in favor of it.

The cooperative system has been favorably considered by the Interfraternity Conference and at the conference of the Association of Deans of Men. At the last Deans of Men conference, which was held in April at the University of Tennessee in Knoxville, a resolution sponsored by the university was adopted.

Editorial control will remain in the hands of Sigma Delta Chi with William Shafer as editor. However, the editor urges that students submit original material of humorous nature at any time. Short stories, jokes, verse, and humorous essays are requested, but no smutty or off-color stories, or "blackmail" or "spite" stories will be accepted. The submitted material will be left with the editor, or in the journalism office.

The next edition will be a special homecoming issue and will be on sale on the campus the morning of November 7, and at the Duke game in the afternoon. Theta Sigma Phi, women's journalistic fraternity, will again have charge of the sales. Students may order copies in advance, enclosing the price, 10 cents a copy, with their orders, and the publication will be delivered.

PLANS MADE FOR '31 LAW JOURNAL
New Members of Editorial Staff of Publication Are Selected Because of Standing in College

Plans for the year have been formulated by the staff of the Kentucky Law Journal, publication issued four times a year by the College of Law of the university. The Journal will appear in November, January, March, and May.

Members of the editorial staff of the publication are chosen because of their standing in the law college. Those who have been added to the staff for the year 1931-32 have a standing of 2 for the last regular semester. They are: James T. Hatcher, Malcolm P. Strange, and John Reeves.

The Kentucky Law Journal contains articles by noted attorneys, judges of the state, members of the Court of Appeals, and prominent teachers in the law sections of other universities. It also contains student notes concerning legal problems written by members of the editorial staff.

A member of the faculty of the College of Law heads the editorial board. Members of the board are: faculty editor, Prof. Roy Moreland; student editor, John Bagwell; case editor, Gordon Finley; circulation manager, Edwin R. Denney; business manager, Lon B. Rogers; book review and legislation, Martin Glenn; J. D. Bond, Hugh Broadhurst, William Dysard, Francis Hanks, James Hatcher, Ralph Homan, James Hume, Rufus Lisle, James Lyne, and Rawlings Ragland.

Agriculture Workers To Hold Conference

The annual conference of county agents, home agents, and agricultural extension workers will be held at the university October 28 to 31. Approximately 200 county agricultural workers are expected to attend. Among the speakers for the occasion will be Dr. C. B. Smith and George E. Farrell of the United States Department of Agriculture. All plans have not been announced regarding the program of the meeting. According to C. A. Lewis of the College of Agriculture, the meetings for the women will be held in the agriculture building and those of the men in the livestock pavilion. A joint convocation of all representatives will be held each day in Memorial hall.

During the plan was presented and passed. The same resolution will be introduced before the Interfraternity Conference at the annual meeting in New York City in February.

Alvin E. Duerr, chairman of the Interfraternity Conference, in a letter to university authorities, states that the conference has been much interested in the movement for the establishment of cooperative buying for fraternities and that a great deal of study has been devoted to it. Several institutions which have adopted the system are cited in the letter and assistance in planning a similar arrangement for the university is offered.

Universities operating under the cooperative buying plan at present are: University of Oregon, which maintains its own warehouse and buys, in many cases, directly from manufacturers and producers; University of Minnesota; Ohio State University; Ohio Wesleyan University, and several others.

Developments of the plan will be carried by The Kernel until it is finally submitted to the administration and the fraternities.

Included in the Interfraternity Conference Yearbook for 1930 is a report by the committee on cooperative chapter activities. In the report are surveys of cooperative buying systems for fraternities and sororities, similar to the one which is planned for the university, which are at present in operation.

The report states that letters were addressed to the deans of 90 colleges in an effort to ascertain the number of schools employing cooperative systems. It was found that 72 had not cooperative buying, companies had charge of fraternity finances, in four some wood, coal and staple groceries purchased from the same concerns but there was no organization, three stated that they had tried cooperative buying and had found it unsuccessful, four replied that they were considering operating the plan, and three reported the successful operation of the system.

At present Oregon State College has the most thoroughly worked out system for cooperative buying. Describing the system there in an appendix to the report of the committee the year book says in part:

"Although incorporated in 1919, a year elapsed before a business manager was employed or a warehouse secured. Hence, the association is now ending its tenth business year. Its holding represents an investment of slightly more than $27,000; it operates without advertising and without the usual overhead expenditures of the average store. Its work center is a modern warehouse stocked with staple groceries, meats, fresh fruits and vegetables, furniture and equipment. A manager and an assistant manager, a butcher, a secretary and six part-time student helpers represent the paid employees of the association."

"That the association is a going concern is demonstrated by the fact that its total sales for 1929-30 are expected to reach the $225,000 mark while its cost of operation will amount to only seven and one-half per cent of its sales. In the same year the association will have refunded to its member $21,000, though at times prices have been lower on the average than existing retail prices."

"More to the point, the association has proved a unifying bond between the fraternities on the Oregon State campus. It has proved to them that through cooperating they may secure a high quality of food and service at a saving of time and money."

"Naturally, a business of this type reached its present proportions only after a struggle. Opposing interests attempted to break up the association through underselling, bribing house managers, bringing about (Continued on Page Four)

CHANGE PLANNED FOR KAMPUS KAT
Sigma Delta Chi Publication Will Be Enlarged in Future

FIRST ISSUE IS SUCCESS

Encouraged by the success and response of the first issue of the Kampus Kat this year at the Washington and Lee game, the Kentucky chapter, Sigma Delta Chi, international journalistic fraternity, is planning an enlarged and better edition in the future.

Instead of the customary eight pages, printed on news print, such as has been published hitherto, the next issue will be a sixteen-page magazine, printed on book paper and attractively bound. In size and content the new magazine will compare with comic magazines that are circulated in other universities throughout the country.

Editorial control will remain in the hands of Sigma Delta Chi with William Shafer as editor. However, the editor urges that students submit original material of humorous nature at any time. Short stories, jokes, verse, and humorous essays are requested, but no smutty or off-color stories, or "blackmail" or "spite" stories will be accepted. The submitted material will be left with the editor, or in the journalism office.

The next edition will be a special homecoming issue and will be on sale on the campus the morning of November 7, and at the Duke game in the afternoon. Theta Sigma Phi, women's journalistic fraternity, will again have charge of the sales. Students may order copies in advance, enclosing the price, 10 cents a copy, with their orders, and the publication will be delivered.

University Alumnus For November to Be Homecoming Issue
The October issue of the Kentucky Alumnus, designated as homecoming number, will be published October 20. The magazine will feature a homecoming story by Niel Plummer.

General campus and sport news, the story of the dedication of the new library, and a description of the eighth annual educational conference to be held at the university October 30 and 31, also will be given in the magazine.

The Alumnus is the official publication of the Alumni association of the university, and is issued monthly. Members of the staff are: James S. Shropshire, editor and manager; Miss Betty Hulet, assistant manager; and Miss Margaret McLaughlin and Miss Helen King, associate editors.

Music Fraternity Announces Plans

Phi Mu Alpha, honorary music fraternity for men has announced its plans for the year. At the last meeting it was decided that its object would be to sponsor the radio programs and to promote American music on the campus. The organization also will sponsor the annual High School Music week which is held in the spring.

The officers for the year are: Elton Durand, president; John Buskie, vice president; Ed Barlow, treasurer, and Dave Welch, secretary.

Among some of the members of Phi Mu Alpha are John Philip Sousa, Padewski, and Stokowski. At the university faculty members are Professor Lambert, head of the music department, Mr. E. G. Sulzer, director of the band, Professor Robinson of the geology department, and Professor South of the department of mathematics.

Their next meeting will be held October 12.

LAW FRATERNITY GRANTS CHAPTER TO UNIVERSITY

Order of the Coif Will Be Installed at U. of K., October 17

THIRTY SCHOOLS HAVE CHAPTERS IN GROUP

Students Ranking Highest in Senior Class Become Members

The order of the Coif, honorary scholastic society of American law schools, will install a chapter in the university College of Law, Saturday, October 17, according to an announcement made yesterday.

The order consists of thirty chapters at the present time, including the one granted the university. Membership is granted upon unanimous vote of the chapters after a careful examination has shown that the law school applying has attained a sufficiently high standard of scholarship. The Kentucky chapter is the first granted during the past three years and it is the fourth to be granted in the South.

The English Order of the Coif was of very ancient origin, being said to antedate the Norman Conquest. From its members were chosen the judges of the Court of Common Pleas, and for a time the judges of the King's Bench and of the Exchequer were also appointed from among the Sergeants of the Coif. The English order controlled legal education through the Inns of Court.

The name is taken from the word used to designate the cap the members wore. This cap or coif was originally a white lawn or silk in the form of a close-fitting hood. By an ancient privilege of the sergeants, the coif was never to be taken off, even in the presence of the king. However, in passing sentences of death, a justice departed from this rule. When wigs came into fashion, the shape of the coif was changed. It became a circular piece of white lawn fastened to the top of the wig.

The number belonging to the English Order at any one time was small, probably not more than 40 or 50. Its roll of members includes the names of many of the greatest lawyers and judges in English history. Such were Coke, Littleton, Bacon, Blackstone, Campbell, and Coleridge. With the rise in importance of the king's council, the power of the Order of the Coif declined and the order has been allowed to die out in England.

The name was revived in America by the honorary fraternity of the law schools, which was organized in 1902.

Each chapter annually elects from the senior class a number of persons, not exceeding ten per cent of the class, who rank highest in scholarship and are of good character.

Noise of Presses Dulls Echoes of Closing Whistle

The thunderous awakening of presses, spewing forth the first of 1,000 "extra edition" Kernels, dulls the echo of the timekeeper's final gun Saturday to herald in print the official score of Kentucky, 45-Washington and Lee, 0. A howling newsboy with 25 Kernels, carrying a play-by-play account of the 11th Wildcat-General conference struggle, reached Stoll field exactly two minutes and 15 seconds after the game ended.

A running account of the contest was relayed by telephone from the stadium press box to The Kernel news room. Quarter by quarter it was dictated to a typist, copyread, and sent to the composing room for linotyping. Set in type, it was proofread and turned over to the pressmen ready to be "put to bed"—waiting for the official gun.

Between the telephoned cry of "Let her roll" and the first impression of the press less than a minute elapsed. Within an hour the 1,000 "extras" flaunting the headlines, "Cats Defeat Generals 45-0 in Annual Contest" were being sold in downtown Lexington.

The first Kernel? That went to the university telephone operator, making possible the uninterrupted news service.

Other features of the "extra" were late scores of other conference and foreign football contests, pictures of the winning and losing players, and an account of the final world series game between the Cardinals and the Athletics.

Y. W. TO HOLD VESPER

The Alpha Delta Theta sorority will have charge of the weekly Y. W. C. A. vesper services which will be held at 7 o'clock this evening in the recreation room at Patterson hall with Marjorie Powell in charge. The program will include a violin solo by Dorothy Likens, a vocal solo by Pauline Offutt, and short talks by Isabelle Norman and Mary Ann Lancaster. The freshman choir, led by Lois E. Neal, also will take part.

Stroller Tryouts to Close on Saturday

Tryouts for Strollers, student dramatic organization, will close Saturday, it was announced Monday by William Ardery, director. The tryouts began Monday afternoon in the auditorium of the university training school.

Plays which are being used for the try-outs are on reserve in the reading room of the new library, where they may be copied by aspirants for Stroller eligibility. Appointments for tryouts can be made by calling Dorothy Jones at Ashland 6673-Y, or Ashland 7792.

During this week the six most outstanding acts will be chosen for participation in Amateur Night, which will be conducted next week. Those who wish to try out are urged to make appointments as soon as possible as the period positively will end Saturday.

WILDCATS CRUSH WASHINGTON AND LEE TEAM 45-0

Long Runs Are Featured in Contest with Virginians Saturday

GENERALS THREATEN U. OF K. GOAL SELDOM

Blocking Is Outstanding; Phipps, Bach, Kelly, Kercheval Play Well

By RALPH E. JOHNSON

For three minutes of the Washington and Lee game 7,000 spectators were sure that Kentucky had the kind of a team that the Maryville score indicated. With a startling suddenness, the game, which looked all W. and L., changed to one that was all Wildcats by 45-0.

Kelly, hitting his old stride, snagged a pass from Bailey and raced the 96 yards to the Generals' goal. And that was not all he did. On the first play after the second kickoff Kelly intercepted another Bailey pass and reached the 37-yard line before he was stopped. He streaked off 36 yards before he was stopped on the next play. Two line bucks failed before Kelly had his chance. He pushed it over. All of that action transpired in less than half the first quarter.

The strength of spirit ebbed from the Generals, but with waning hope they made one desperate effort to score. They reached the 17-yard line as the quarter ended, and as the new quarter opened they lost the ball on downs. That was the last serious threat made by the Virginians.

Substitutions for Kentucky began to pour in. Bach replaced Kelly, and what a replacement! The fans couldn't tell the difference. His 80-yard jaunt for a touchdown differed only in yards from the 96 that Kelly rolled off. He reversed his field, rolled tacklers off, threw his hips and moved his feet, with Kelly's familiar rhythm.

At the first of the season Bach could go through the line as well as the best of them, but his bugaboo was an end run. Within a week's time he was making the ends for considerable gains. His explanation was, "Kelly showed me how to go around those ends." In many ways he is similar to "Shipwreck." His work as a freshman was good; as a prep school player he was well known, and he held a southern prep school record for the 440-yard dash.

Blocking in the game Saturday was outstanding. No one knew that such an ability was present in the Wildcat camp.

Long runs for scores not systematic drives, a first down at a time, gained for Kentucky the 45-0 victory they enjoyed over Jimmy Dehart's Generals.

Jack Phipps' blocking was sensational in critical moments. He paved the way for more than one long run. And he made a few long runs himself. Right through the center of the line he crashed. Once he rambled for 49 yards, leaving a wake of sprawling men. Urbaniak (Continued on Page Four)

KERNEL EXTRA

By the Editor

Precisely two minutes and 15 seconds after the final gun in the game with Washington and Lee on Stoll field Saturday afternoon copies of The Kernel carrying the complete story of the game were on sale at the stadium. Quite naturally, we are proud of this accomplishment.

Many objections were raised to an extra edition of The Kernel by several members of staff and other journalists. We are not yet able to see how the edition in any way was harmful to any of the persons who objected to it.

We wish to express our appreciation to those members of the staff who aided in the publication of the paper Saturday and we believe that their work and the work of the mechanical department under direction of "Uncle" Dave Griffith, was thoroughly worthy of commendation.

THE WILDCATS

Like men waking from unpleasant dreams were the University of Kentucky Wildcats on Stoll field Saturday afternoon. While it may be pointed out that the Big Blue was rated a better team than the Generals, and that the Virginians undoubtedly folded up before the close of the first half, it still reflects a great deal of credit on the team that it made a come-back which startled even the players themselves.

If the fight and drive which were essential in the victory Saturday continue throughout the season the 'Cats will have a most successful year. It is the hope of The Kernel that, whatever may have been the inspiration for the contest Saturday, that influence will remain with the team until the season closes.

To us the most admirable feature of the game with Washington and Lee was the excellent blocking of the team as a whole. Both backfield and line deserve credit for making possible the many long gains, and the work which they did is ample proof that the football situation at Kentucky is decidedly improved over last year.

NEW FRATERNITY FINANCE PLAN

The finance plan which is at present under consideration by members of the university administration is another step which will place this institution in the forefront of modern education. Under the system which is being planned fraternities and other organized bodies on the campus will benefit in several ways.

Food will be purchased by a central agency, which is directly controlled by the university, for all the sororities and fraternities. Figures based on results which have been obtained at other universities with similar systems show that a saving of approximately 20 per cent can be effected. With five per cent deducted for the cost of administration of the project the organizations included in the plan still are receiving food at a 15 per cent reduction.

This, in itself, makes the arrangement one which will prove most beneficial to the Greek-Letter societies of the campus. Food bills naturally are the largest which the modern fraternity is called upon to meet and a 15 per cent decrease cannot but operate to their advantage. Prompt deliveries and good management naturally will be an integral part of the plan.

In addition to providing food at reduced cost the plan calls for the auditing of fraternity and sorority books at periods during the year by representatives of the university.

To some lodges this undoubtedly will have the appearance of unnecessary meddling on the part of the university. If they are able to keep their heads above the financial sea, why, they will ask, should the administration concern itself with how they do it? This objection, of course, will be raised mainly by those organizations which are financially unstable, and which are able to meet current expenses by incurring large debts or by constantly calling on their already harassed alumni for aid.

By auditing the books of the fraternities and sororities the university will be able to check on which of them are not properly meeting their obligations and whether or not the means employed to do so are advantageous to the fraternity itself. The Kernel believes that any organization which has a sound financial standing will not object to this phase of the system.

In the organization of the cooperative buying plan every member fraternity will be on an equal basis and will be represented on a board of directors which will control the operations of the pool. At the outset stock will be sold to each fraternity and sorority and at the end of the year dividends on the stock will be returned to them.

At present it is planned to have members of the Pan-Hellenic council as the fraternity representatives for the cooperative buying plan. It would seem hardly a logical objection to the plan that it is being inaugurated by the administration without the sanction of those who will be directly affected by it. To The Kernel it seems that the whole system is one which will serve the fraternities of the university and which will bring about a more secure basis for work in other fields by the organizations.

In many schools where the plan has been tried it has proven most successful. With the saving which is brought about in food and other supplies member societies are able to carry on other activities or reduce the cost of a fraternity to the individual member.

It is accepted that without a firm financial standing no fraternity can accomplish the ends for which it is supposed to strive. It is also accepted that the Greek-Letter societies of the university have experienced considerable difficulty in the last several years in meeting increased obligations. The Kernel believes that a system of the type described would do much to alleviate a most unsatisfactory situation and that, although there may be objection to the innovation by those organizations which need it most, it will, later on, be accepted as a most valuable and helpful agency which will remove many of the troubles which have existed in the past, and which, without the inception of such an arrangement, undoubtedly will continue to exist in the future.

STUDENTS AND SEATING SYSTEM

Editor, The Kentucky Kernel
University of Kentucky
Lexington, Ky.

Dear Sir:

Are students supposed to have little or no consideration by university authorities or are they, as some people believe, the foundation of the school itself and therefore deserving of decent treatment? If they are, why are they given a small section of seats at football games, the rest being reserved for outsiders?

I believe that ample space should be reserved for all students and that those in charge of ticket sales should not sacrifice the students' interests for the money which is taken in at the gates. Many students at the game with Washington and Lee had to go to the north side of the stadium to find a seat because most of the seats on the south side had been reserved for other spectators.

If you will publish this letter it may help to change the situation. It certainly needs changing.

Yours respectfully,
(Signed) A FOOTBALL FAN

ODE TO THE CHIEF OF CLAN IRVINE

All hail to the chief of the clan that once gave
To Scotland her king, to her foemen a grave;
And the gleam of whose armor when seen from afar,
Had only one meaning—the coming of war.

All hail to the chief of the clan that held sway
From the Solway's swift tick to the clear flowing Tay,
Who strong in their valor defiance could fling
In the face of the foe be he warden or king.

All hail to the chief of the clan that stood sure
In the forefront of battle on moss or on moor,
Where their sabers flashed bright like a beam in the night
While they fought for their country, the king and the right.

All hail to the chief who at hard-fought Harley
Met the Lord of the Isles and Mac Lean of Mullis;
Where the Gael in his tartans the clan from afar
Fell like grain 'neath the lovers of Irvine and Mar.

All hail to the chief who on Doris' Flodden Field
With the crest of the holly on helmet and shield,
Let Scotland's Light Horsemen 'gainst England's deep ranks,
While they charged on her bowmen in front and on flank.

All hail to the clan which at red Waterloo
The flag of the valiant Scotch Borderers flew,
Where they wrote with their swords mid cannons' loud boom,
In letters of blood the great Corsican's doom.

All hail to the chief of the clan that still lives,
That navy and army and nation yet gives
Her sailors, her soldiers, her statesmen—good men,
The lords of the rudder and sword and the pen.

All hail to the chief of the clan whose forbears
Held castle and fortress twice five hundred years;
And long may its banners—escutcheon—still wave
O'er the clansmen now living, and those in the grave.

Kappa Virginia WaDELL asserts that she would not swallow her chewing gum for everyone. . . Kappa Sig Jimmy McNamara was another newsmen in town for the week-end.

Fidels are Flattered
Too subtle was the flattery to the Fidels by the 3delt at their open house Friday afternoon. After being told that they were to open the Three Triangle "social season" the gentlemen of 128 South Limestone had to wait a week for the Independents to have their fun within the sacred walls of the sisterhood.

As desirable features of the gathering, however, were good punch, good sandwiches, few girls.

THE GIRL WITH A ROSE

Virginia Waddle

To the green-eyed, gum chewing, freckled, flaxen-haired, Kappa Virginia Waddle goes our rose today because her usual unconsciousness sometimes is dispelled by almost scintillating outbursts; because she knows little, cares even less about student politics; because she is from Somerset—even we do not know why that should be a reason; because she is amusing; because she can always enjoy lapsing into a coma when her companions become uninteresting; because she is a Kappa, and no matter what one thinks or says of the Kappas, they quite obviously are still the Kappas.

Merely A Movie

"Merely Mary Ann", Fox picture now on exhibition at the Strand is one of those shows that fans of the team of Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell will like. However, one has to be a dyed in the wool fan of this combo to overlook the lack of cinematic entertainment. It so happened that, in palmer days, your correspondent enacted one of the roles of "Merely Mary Ann" on the stage. G. P. Huntley, Jr., late of the footlights, enacted "our" role, and, as one artist to another does it well. Henry King directed "Merely Mary Ann", but we doubt an evidence of overwork on his physical being. It merely unwinds in a none too interesting seige of sentimentality, and what Hollywood moguls construe to be wistfulness.

Kick-Off

The referee's whistle has blown for the annual parade of gridiron romances. The Kentucky theatre receives the kick-off and brings it to us under the title "The Spirit of Notre Dame". The Universal production is purported, according to its dedication subtitle, to be a cenotaph to the late great mentor of Notre Dame's far famed "Fighting Irish". Although Lew Ayers, Universal's prize hope for big box office, is the star, Harry Barris is the only performer in the cast whose work is genuinely meritorious. Barris was a member of the original Whiteman "Rhythm Boys", and is reported to have taught the now famous balladier Bing Crosby the business of making flappers' hearts palpitate. "The Spirit of Notre Dame", to get back to our subject, is a picture that offers fair entertainment, but is nothing sensational.

fect example of its relentless wheels is portrayed at the Ben Ali. "Get Rich Quick Wallingford" is the picture, a product of the M. G. M. lot, and proves a story released some time ago that the lion is wearying of roaring for Bill Haines. In other words, Metro is not renewing Haines contract. When a studio is planning to rid itself of a high-salaried star, his last few pictures for that studio are poorly produced so that the star will be broken at the box office. Ernest Torrence, in "Get Rich Quick Wallingford", tries valiantly to give his usual splendid performance although hampered by wretched dialogue. Haines is at his weakest. The picture, a 1931 version of an old stage farce, contains a few laughs but little genuine comedy.

Basketball Practice Will Start Thursday; Frosh Report Oct. 26

By Ralph E. Johnson

To start thinking of basketball right in the midst of football season seems a little previous, but nevertheless, Coach Rupp has issued a call for candidates for his varsity squad. According to the announcement the men are to report for equipment and further instructions in the Men's gymnasium at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon, October 15.

"There must be a good many basketball players in a school of this size who have not turned out. If any man wants to play on my team he had better turn out now and make an impression before the basketball players on the football team come out," said Coach Rupp, in somewhat of an appeal for more material. His cry for men comes as a result of losing three All-Southern players from last year's squad, and from the necessity of having material with which to build up a team to play Georgetown on the 16th of December and two days later to play a strong Carnegie Tech team.

This year's football season calls for a game to be played in Florida on December 5, which means that Yates, Johnson, Darby and Worthington will not be able to report for practice until the 10th of the month. With the Georgetown game only six days from that date and the Carnegie game within the same week, things will have to progress fast.

As the freshman basketball team of last year was "absolutely the worst that has ever represented the University of Kentucky," Coach Rupp is banking on Sale, the only letter man available, Kleiser, Little, Bell, and what material he can work up from last year's freshmen squad to beat Georgetown.

Coach Rupp said, "Last year was the hardest season ever played by a Kentucky team. This year it is tougher. The material is none too promising, and the outlook is pretty darn tough, but we are not gloomy."

Briefs From Enemy Camps

Maryland

Washington, Oct. 10.—Striking swiftly through the air to score the only touchdown of the game, the University of Maryland today beat the Navy 6 to 0 for the first time in football history.

Before 20,000 rooters at Griffith stadium the golden-jerseyed Old Liners tallied in the third period on a perfect forward pass play. They fought the Middies to a standstill the rest of the struggle.

The touchdown came with spectacular suddenness. The ball was in mid-field. George Chalmers, triple threat halfback, dropped back and hurled a long arching pass.

Al Pease, speedy left end, gathered it in over his shoulder on a dead run and dashed 20 yards to score without a Navy man near him.

The 6 to 0 score was the same by which Maryland lost to its rival a year ago. Maryland plays Kentucky next at College Park.

Vols

Knoxville, Tenn., Oct. 10.—After a sluggish start, the University of Tennessee eleven went on a scoring spree in the final period today and overwhelmed the University of Mississippi 30 to 0.

Gene McEver, halfback, was nearly the whole show in the Vols' one-sided victory. Three minutes after the game started, he skirted right end and ran 21 yards for a touchdown. A few minutes later he shot a pass to Mark, end, good for 16 yards and a score.

Again in the third period McEver opened the way for a touchdown by completing a 17-yard pass to Kohlase, fullback, after which Allen, McEver's running mate, smashed through for 14 yards and over the goal line. The flashy halfback completed his day's work in the final period by sidestepping through center and racing 42 yards.

The Vols added two more touchdowns in the final period when Brackett, quarterback, broke thru right tackle and raced 80 yards, and Feathers, sophomore halfback, made a sensational 79-yard run around left end.

English Actor

SIR PHILLIP BEN GREET

The Ben Greet players, English organization known throughout the world for its production of Shakespearean plays, will present "Twelfth Night" in the afternoon and "Hamlet" on the night of October 27, in Memorial hall. The presentation will give of "Hamlet" is the first quarto version, which was never given in America until last season, when it was presented by the Ben Greet players.

Sir Phillip Ben Greet, sponsor of the players, is an eminent British actor and producer. He is said to have schooled more actors than any other living man, and was knighted by George V in 1929, in recognition of his efforts toward the cause of drama in education.

It was not until 1823 that the existence of the first quarto version, which the Ben Greet players will present, was discovered. Only two copies have been found, one of which is in the English Museum. The other is in the possession of Henry Huntington, of California. The first quarto was printed in 1603 and is but half the length of the second quarto, or the edition of 1604. None of the actual drama is omitted in the first quarto, but the writing is direct and more satisfactory for acting.

The Boston Transcript of January 13, 1931, covering the Ben Greet players' appearance at Harvard at the invitation of the department of English, has the following to say concerning the first quarto version of "Hamlet":

"Let the scholars have their arguments and their theories about the First Quarto. It should be enough for an evening before the footlights that here is a play to hold the attention and stir the senses, be the origins what they may."

FRESHMEN LOSE TO VANDY FIRST YEAR MEN, 13-0

Coach Pribbles' Kentucky Kitten ran into a forward passing offense at the hands of the Vanderbilt freshmen at Nashville, Tennessee, Saturday afternoon, and when the last whistle had blown, found themselves on the short end of a 13 to 0 count.

By virtue of an incomplete lateral pass which was tried by the Kentucky freshmen, and which was recovered on the Kentuckian's 30 yard line, the Vanderbilt first year men scored their first marker of the game. On the second play after the recovery of the lateral pass, Scoggins, a substitute Vandy half back, tossed a pass over the goal line to Spears for a touchdown. Beck's place kick for the extra point was good.

Vanderbilt's second touchdown came in the fourth chukker on a line plunge by Beck. The whole Kitten line stopped Brown at center when he attempted to plunge over for the extra point.

Honors of the game went to Jean and Barney in the Kittens' backfield, while Rupert, Montjoy and Cowherd gave credible performances in the line.

The Kittens threatened to score only once during the game, but suffered a bad break when they lost the ball on downs and the Rats kicked to safety.

Cooperative Buying System Is Planned

unjust discrimination on part of wholesale establishments through pressure from local retailers, and attempting legislation that would forbid such a corporation which would function for students who are members of state institutions, despite the fact that such students operate off the campus. But the Cooperative Managers association weathered every storm and stands today firmly entrenched in the lives of Oregon State fraternities, in the good will of the Corvallis merchants and bankers, and in the credit rating of manufacturers, canners, brokers and wholesale concerns throughout the United States. It is a pioneer, and it is unique.

The report continues with a history of the organization at Oregon State, where it is located; what food and other supplies are carried in stock; its operation and management, and its financial returns. The plan at Williams College is also completely described in appendix B to the report. It is expected that the system which may be inaugurated by the University of Kentucky will be similar to those already in operation in other institutions of the country. It will necessarily be run on a smaller scale than is the one at the Oregon State College but it is believed that similar methods and means of operation can be employed.

Sam Langfitt Chosen Head Cheer Leader

Sam Langfitt, Huntington, W. Va., Kappa Alpha, was chosen university cheer leader by Suky Circle at the W. and L. pep meeting attended by approximately 1,000 students and football fans held in the Alumni gymnasium Friday night. Curt Howard, Cumberland, Lambda Chi Alpha pledge, was elected first alternate cheer leader.

Langfitt was picked from a group of eight contestants. He is a transfer from Marshall College, Huntington, West Virginia, and has had five years' experience as a cheer leader, three years in high school and two years in college.

Wallace Muir, was the principle speaker, at the pep meeting, and Coach Harry Gamage, and Tom Phipps, former Wildcat star, also made short talks. The university band played.

Kentucky 13, Maryland 0

Papa Gamage's Wildcats have the sports writers up a free and they are afraid to come down. Local scribes evade the issue, and in the far South, where conference teams are built on paper, it's hands off Kentucky. Reputations are fragile things and Kentucky is an unknown quantity.

Those of the old school who, ten years ago, started saying "Wait 'til next year," are among the doubting Thomases. They have become caloused, hardened, used to anything but certain victory. To the casual observer, Kentucky would seem a bit erratic. Nosing out Maryville, 19 to 0, when a top-heavy score was expected, and dunning over Washington and Lee when the game was considered fairly even is a poor percentage for the prophets.

Funny thing, too, Kentucky's reserves looked good Saturday. There are those who didn't know we had these animals in the menagerie. And then there are the people who said we couldn't beat a DeHart coached machine, and that we couldn't stop a passing attack.

Here's a list of other advertised impossible things: Kentucky will never have a championship team. Kentucky will never beat a Wade-coached team. Kentucky will never beat Alabama or Tennessee.

Children Must Play, You Know

Think nothing of it if we indulge for a moment in childish chatter, for we must prattle if Bruce Dudley is to understand. This self-made youngster, who grew too big for the hometown boys at Owensville, has been delving into the records of the Kentucky Fish and Game Commission. Pleasant pastime? Why not?

A graduate of neither Kentucky nor Centre, the Big Boy has decided that he is the Moses to lead Kentucky and Centre back into the fold. Commendable? Why not? Not that it matters, but maybe he has a brother at Centre.

As he goes deeper into the secret he finds the reason Kentucky does not play Centre is that Gamage is afraid of his job. Piffle! And another piffle, Mister Dudley. Not even original. But small town taunts make good reading—they help fill a column. Don't they Mister Dudley?

The student body of the University of Kentucky and the student body of Centre College have grown closer together during the last year. And instead of seeking to pour oil on the troubled waters, Mister Dudley would create a hostile attitude. Shamey, shamey.

YOU'RE NEXT!

"Five, or maybe just four," answered one college professor when asked how many columns adorn the front of Memorial hall.

"Six or four, I forget which," responded a prominent campus idol in answer to the same question.

"Five," ventured a dashing young maiden.

"It has six," declared another emphatically.

"Four or five—it couldn't have many more than that," volunteered a Phi Beta Kappa aspirant.

"Four or five, I think—I had to write that last year, added a recruit from the lists of the would-be intelligentsia.

The fact of the matter is that there are eight columns, easily counted; easily remembered, too, eh?

30 Lectures Will Be Radiocast by N.B.C.

Beginning Saturday, October 17, and sponsored by the national advisory council on radio in education, the National Broadcasting company will present a series of 30 lectures, dealing with psychology and child development. The lectures will be on the air every Saturday evening from 7:45 to 8 o'clock, Lexington time.

The group will be concluded December 19 by Leta S. Hollingworth, of Teachers College, Columbia, who will discuss "Adolescence: The Difficult Age."

A notebook complimenting each group of five lectures can be obtained by writing the Council at 60 East 42nd street, New York City, and enclosing 25 cents, or by the end of this week they can be obtained for 10 cents from Dr. Henry Beaumont, head of the Personnel bureau. A bibliography of extraneous readings is also for free distribution to those students of psychology and others interested in the lectures.

TAX REVIEW PUBLISHED

The recent publication of the bureau of business research of the College of Commerce, "Personnel for the Administration of State Income Tax Laws," prepared by Prof. James W. Martin, director of the bureau, and Prof. A. J. Lawrence, has received an enthusiastic reception at the hands of the tax officials of the various states, according to responses received recently. The following quotation from a letter just received from the office of the franchise tax commissioner of California gives an indication of the reception in that state: "You may be interested to know that the former commissioner, made his share of the long runs and a touchdown.

Once, when Kentucky seemed stopped at the goal line, they had to call on Phipps to drive through the line. Three yards separated the Blue line from the double white line and three tries were futile. Jack was called on and in an almost superhuman drive pushed the entire W. and L. line back for the necessary three yards.

Kelly punts, but not like Ralph Kercheval. He punts well over 50 yards for an average. His 75-yard boot was probably the longest, highest, and handsomest that has ever been witnessed on Stoll field. A try from placement for the extra point after a touchdown was made good by Ralph's educated toe.

This week, as last, the line performed well. The average gain made by the W. and L. team was 1.6 yards, compared with the 9 yards average for the 'Cats. Most of the Virginians' gain came through the air.

TWO TIRES

That Bowled Over Every Value Tradition

The ALLSTATE and Its NEW PAL The COMPANION

Still Miles Ahead!

Sears' new COMPANION Tire was designed by the same engineering genius whose ideas made ALLSTATE unrivalled in performance. It is produced—like ALLSTATE—in the world's largest tire factory, with all the skillful care Sears' inspections demand. It is the first tire good enough to be ALLSTATE's running mate.

There is no mystery at all about the phenomenally low prices Sears marks on these two great tires. Sears, the world's largest purchaser of tires, buys them both at lowest factory prices. By shipping them straight-to-the-store, branch warehousing and selling expenses are entirely avoided. And store overhead is shared by all the other merchandise Sears sells. Contrast this economical way of distributing with the usual method, and you instantly see why ALLSTATE and COMPANION are by far the greatest values in all the tire world!
